TWO EXPLOSIONS CAUSED SAD HAVOC.

Two Women Fatally Injured and Several Men Seriously Hurt by Scattering Debris When the Second Explosion Occurred— Daring Escape of a Woman with a Steady

St. Louis, Sept. 28 .- A disastrous fire, which within five minutes after its origin claimed two victims for death and injured many firemen, broke out in McLean's sporting goods store on Fourth street, between Locust and St. Charles streets, at 9 a. m.

While the fire engines and apparatus were rapidly responding to the alarm, an explosion occurred in the building, and a moment later the figtres of women were seen in the thirdstory windows, and the crowd, which was already great, yelled to them to get back. One slight figure poised on the sill for an instant, and then plunged to the pavement. It was an awful fall, and she struck the sidewalk with a dull sound.

The mob yelled to her not to jump, but she had a cooler head than the other girl. She held on and looked about. Then she began a perilous journey, which kept the mob spellbound for a few moments. She stepped from one window to the next until she reached the upper windows of the Scarritt Furniture Co., next door, when her heroism was cheered by the pletely enveloped in the dense volume of smoke. Just as the third tower, in four miles of the place at the time, No. 6, was raised, a second explosion, and would thus receive $10,000 of the heavier than the first, occurred. The windows of the St. Louis Crockery store, at 408 North Fourth, were shattered like egg shells.
